The Green Room kids worked hard to build each scene. We used many craft materials and found objects. Here is a key to help readers.

Once upon a time in Brooklyn, New York, there was no Coronavirus. Life was normal and we didn't have to worry about anything. We could go in other people's houses, we could touch our faces, and we didn't have to wash our hands so much. And most importantly, we didn't have to wear masks!

Then the Coronavirus Monster came. It was bad and spread the virus everywhere. The monster was strong and very happy. It would eat food to grow stronger and stronger. As the monster got stronger, it would spit out more and more Coronavirus. People started to get sick. And we stopped going to school. People had to wear masks and wash their hands all the time. And worst of all people had to stay home as much as possible.

Since the virus can get into your body and make you sick, an army of white blood cells came to make the monster and the Coronavirus go away. The army got too close to the Coronavirus monster and got sick. They went to the doctor every day to get the vaccine, but the monster began to spread Coronavirus all over Brooklyn

After the army of white blood cells got the vaccine, they came back to fight the monster again. They shot lasers at the Coronavirus Monster and used rockets with armor and fire boosters. The monster got too close to the fire and got burnt to the ground. The Coronavirus Monster died.

But new Coronavirus Monster came. It used magic to transform into a human. It was HUGE and stomped down the highway spreading the virus to a lot of people. It tripped and fell, but it got up. It also got burnt by the White Blood Cell Army, but it was very strong and spread germs anyway.

The White Blood Cell army tried again to shoot down the monster, but the monster got zapped with magic and multiplied into 100 monsters. This time the army used 2,000 rockets, but that didn't work. The blood cells had a huge battle with the Coronavirus Monsters.

One day, the monsters got too close to a little girl and it made her sick. Her blood was filled with the special white blood cells that formed antibodies and then the little girl had magical powers. She could turn into different forms and use webs like Spiderman. The little girl fought the Coronavirus Monster with her magical powers. She spun web bags that were super strong and sticky. They swallowed up the coronavirus monster. She threw the bags in hot lava and made them melt and then disappear.

The Coronavirus Monster was gone forever. Everyone was so happy that the bad virus was gone. The White Blood Cell Army threw a party for the little girl. They had balloons, streamers, decorations and birthday cake. It was very fun.
